Information

With over one billion stamps printed, the WWF stamp collection is the largest thematic collection in the world. In its latest WWF issue, Philately Liechtenstein is showing four wildlife species which were long believed to be extinct but have meanwhile settled in the region again: "Beaver" (face value: CHF 0.85), "Lynx" (face value: CHF 1.00), "Wolf" (face value: CHF 1.30) and "Stork" (face value: CHF 1.50).

actively reintroduced to Switzerland in 1971 and have been spreading in the Principality since that date. Wolves have been migrating into Switzerland from the south since the 1990s. They live nearby in the Calanda region as well as in other places. In recent years, wolves were seen on four different unconfirmed occasions. Due to the efforts of various organisations, a stork couple made Liechtenstein their home in 2007 – for the first time in over 100 years. In the meantime, Liechtenstein counts sixteen stork nests.

The beaver found its way back to Liechtenstein in 2008 and has been propagating continually since then. But it finds only few natural areas in the valley where it can build its habitat as it pleases. Lynx were

A design competition advertised among young Liechtenstein artists chose the motifs for the Christmas stamps of the next three issues. This year's special stamps were designed by illustrator and storyteller Eliane Schädler. With her "Star of Bethlehem" (face value: CHF 0.85), "Winter Forest" (face value: CHF 1.00), "Moonshine" (face value: CHF 1.50) and "Church" (face value: CHF 2.00), she impressively portrays houses with warm glowing lights against cold and dark landscapes. By doing so, she is seeking to communicate the feelings evoked in her at the thought of Christmas to beholders, i.e. feelings of being safe, snug and content.

Eliane Schädler painted the stamps in their original size in water colours, scanned them with high resolution and then further processed them digitally. Besides needing a very fine paintbrush, depicting scenes on such a small surface also requires that only the bare essentials are portrayed: simple shapes and clearcut surfaces. That is why she attached great importance to using vivid colours to convey the mood. By including white areas on the stamps, the artist creates a connection between the stamp to the usually white envelope which is often used in the pre-Christmas period.

The Chinese Signs of the Zodiac series, which has meanwhile become a tradition, is being continued with the dog. To celebrate the "Year of the Dog 2018" (face value: CHF 2.00) the Philately is again issuing a self-adhesive stamp designed as filigree silhouette and produced using the very latest laser technology. The 4-stamp sheetlet in red – the Chinese symbol for good luck – is also cut in the shape of a dog. All the imprints were applied in high-quality gold foil embossing.

The fascination of Chinese culture lies in its diversity, one aspect of which is astrology with its twelve zodiac signs. China is celebrating the Year of the Dog from 16 February 2018 until 4 February 2019. People born in the Year of the Dog are believed to be honest, loyal and have a strong sense of duty say experts. Their intelligence and diligence makes them good leaders in the business world. They appear to be self-confident, inspire confidence and are very popular on account of their endearing nature. Although dogs are generally trustworthy, people born in these years have difficulty in trusting others according to astrologers.

The 23rd Winter Olympics will be held in the city of Pyeongchang in South Korea from 9 to 25 February 2018. After the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, these are the second Olympic Games to be held in South Korea. Following two previously unsuccessful attempts in 2010 and 2014, this was Pyeongchang's third go at being nominated to host the Olympic Games. With over fifty million inhabitants, South Korea is one of the most densely urbanised and thirty most populous countries of the world.

The Philately once again commissioned an artist from the host country to design the traditional Olympic stamps showing the motifs "Nordic Skiing" (face value: CHF 1.70) and "Alpine Skiing" (face value: CHF: 2.00). The Korean woman Sojung Kim-McCarthy, who meanwhile lives in Bournemouth, England, portrayed one athlete each from the two sports disciplines in a typical racing pose on the stamp and made the design appear particularly dynamic by adding colourful highlights. The face values of the special stamps appearing on a 20-stamp sheet reflect the overseas postage rates for A and B letter post to the host country.

The "Chinese Signs of the Zodiac: Dog" has now also appeared as an exclusive, numbered printed sheet.

You can obtain the printed sheets without additional charge at the exhibition stands or collect them from Philately Liechtenstein, Zollstrasse 58 in Schaan against cash payment.

To protect the sheets from damage during transport, good transport packaging is required which, unfortunately, has led to slightly higher shipping costs:

A visit will be well worthwhile.

The postal organisations of Austria, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Switzerland and Germany have worked together repeatedly for years. This cooperation has again expressed itself this year in a joint project for Christmas. The current Christmas stamps of these countries will be united in the philatelic commemorative set "Christmas Multilateral 2017" full of Christmas spirit. For decades, the four German-speaking countries have planned special Christmas issues every year. These stamps serve particularly to provide festive postmarks for greetings and postal items at Christmas but are also very popular as collectors' items in stamp collections.

Which is the most beautiful?

In the vote to select the most beautiful stamp of 2016 our customers chose the issue "Nature Reserves in Liechtenstein: Ruggeller Riet". From all the votes cast 20 winners were drawn by lot who can now delight in a handsome book of photographs of the Principality of Liechtenstein. The winners were each informed in person. We take this opportunity to express our warm thanks for the lively interest shown in this popular competition!
